

// Privacy Statement

WLW takes data privacy seriously and observes all applicable laws. The following statement provides you with a brief account of the data WLW collects and how.

SiteCatalyst

WLW uses Omniture SiteCatalyst™, a web analytics service from Adobe Systems GmbH, Georg-Brauchle-Ring 58, 80992 München, Germany. SiteCatalyst uses so-called cookies and tracking pixels that are retrieved from your computer or stored there and which allow an analysis of your use of the website. The information thus gathered about your use of this website is transmitted to an Omniture server in the USA and stored there. Omniture uses this information to evaluate your use of the website and provide us with reports of your website activities. You can avoid cookies by setting your browser software accordingly; however, this might well prevent your using the functions on this website to their full extent. In using this website you agree to the data collected about you by WLW and its authorized agents in the manner and for the purposes described above. More information about these services is available in the privacy statement from Omniture at <http://www.omniture.com/de/privacy/policy>.

Facebook

WLW uses plugins from facebook.com – the social utility – operated by Facebook Inc., 1601 S. California Ave, Palo Alto, CA 94304, USA. When you access a website that has such a plugin, a link to the Facebook server is set up and thus the plugin to that website established by virtue of a message to your browser. This results in the Facebook server knowing which website you have visited. If you are logged in as a member of Facebook, Facebook will assign this information to your personal Facebook account. When using the plugin functions, e.g. by clicking on "Share on Facebook", this information will also be assigned to your Facebook account, which you can only avoid by logging out before using the plugin. More information about the collection and use of data by Facebook can be found under its privacy policy at <http://www.facebook.com/#!/policy.php>.

UserVoice

In order to implement customer feedback technically in the area "My suppliers", WLW uses a product from UserVoice, Inc 425 Bush St., Suite 600 San Francisco, CA 94108, USA. When you use the feedback function, a link to the UserVoice IT systems is set up and the data you have entered is stored there. If you register via your Facebook or your existing GoogleMail account to use the feedback functions, a link to the Facebook server or the GoogleMail server is set up and the data required for identification is exchanged. If you are logged in as a member of Facebook, Facebook will assign this information to your personal Facebook account, which you can only avoid by logging out before using the feedback function. More information about the collection and use of data by Facebook and Google can be found above in the corresponding paragraphs; more information on UserVoice is available at <http://uservoice.com/privacy#aliens>

Agreement

In using this website the user agrees to the storage and processing of personal data, particularly that accumulated by using WLW-EGS, as well as content, use and traffic data. WLW is entitled to pass this data on to third parties for the purpose of asserting legal rights in the event that the WLW-EGS are used for something not covered by the Terms of Use or under a statutory or administrative rule. The user is entitled to revoke its assent at any time. The data will never be passed on to third parties outside the company for advertising purposes.
